LAMP Fellow '22

Erasmus Mundus Scholar 2022

Ms. Ritanshu Lohani is a law graduate with interest in Constitutional Law, International Law and Public Policy. As a law student, She has worked on a wide range of topics that includes space law, money laundering, investment law and dispute resolution. She read the law to be adept at mapping out the legislative intent of law-making and strengthening her historical foundations of law and policy-making in India.

She learnt about the LAMP Fellowship in a seminar organized by Lloyd Law College, where She got an opportunity to hear from one of the LAMP fellows and his experience. His experience resonated with her aspirations to work in the field of public policy and research. Therefore, She applied for the LAMP Fellowship to gain exposure in the policy domain. She has always found the Constitution and functioning of Parliament exciting. The Fellowship offers a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to serve as a legislative assistant to a Member of Parliament and to gain valuable insight into the workings of Parliament and our representatives.

Higher Education and Scholarship Application ::

There is a wide variety of career paths within the fields of law and public policy: law, law enforcement/criminal justice, lobbying, and public policy/advocacy. Legal and policy issues are addressed within all employment sectors, including government, and in non-profits having public interest rather than direct service missions. There are legal and public affairs departments in most large for-profit companies and management consulting firms contracting with the government to provide policy analysis. Public policy is issue-driven and virtually every career field has policy-related jobs. There are many ways to do policy work. Advocacy organizations, labor unions and lobbyists work to influence and change policy. Think tanks (World Directory of Think Tanks) conduct research and analysis on policy issues. Politicians are the policy-makers with legislative support agencies from all employment sectors doing policy analysis. Public administrators implement policy. Jobs in law enforcement are expected to increase because of increased concerns about national security and health-related crimes. The demand for correctional officers is also on the rise as additional officers are hired to supervise a growing inmate population. All law and policy jobs have been affected by the slowing down of the economy. The employment of lawyers is expecting only average growth through 2022, while the need for paralegals is projected to grow faster as legal staffs hire paralegals to lower the cost of their services. The outlook depends in many respects upon how other industries are faring. For example, as the healthcare and biotech sectors show signs of growth, so will the need for legal services (trademark and patent law) and policy analysis in these fields.

Hope to see you all in regular classes, additional courses, practical academics, skilling opportunities and professional guidance of excellence and standard.
